

THESE 3 THINGS

St. Joseph's Indian School

We serve and teach, we receive and learn.

As part of creating a more robust communication platform, on January 31 St. Joseph's Indian School launched a video podcast series to showcase the people and ideas that make our school the special place it is. We also reach and partner with outside experts.

Why Hóčhoka Podcast?

Why tune in to a podcast from St. Joseph's Indian School? Learn more about what the school has to offer. Listen to the wisdom of thought-leaders on Native American education today. Laugh, hope, warm your heart and sharpen your mind at the center of our camp circle as we share our conversations with you.

What's in a Name?

The Lakota word Hóčhoka literally means the center of the camp circle. The name speaks to the actual location of the recording studio at the center of campus, the centrality of the mission of St. Joseph's Indian School to all that we do, the role of the podcast to be at the center of the Native American educational conversation and to gather others around that conversation.

Can You Hear Me Now?

Mike Tyrell, Jennie Schilling, Krista Lepkowski, Joseph Marshall III, LaRayne Woster, Dr. Damian Costello -- hear them all in conversation with hosts Family Service Counselor Scott Woster and Alumnus Hope McCloskey.

Tune in to Hóčhoka Podcast at:
<https://sjiskids.org/our-stories/podcasts/>

Learn more about us at www.sjiskids.org.